Captain T. B. Murray is between the deep sea and other trouble, through the possession of a lease of lot on King street. By the terms of his lease he must build a brick building this year, but the Board of Health has mapped out an extension of Smith street to the waterfront which would include the Murray lot. Murray is in a quandary. If he fails to build and the Board to extend, he loses his lease and if he builds and the Board extends, he loses his building.

The big steam roller is finally at work straightening out the pits and mudholes on Fort street. The slopes from the car tracks to the curb, the terror of bicyclists, have been filled in with macadam, which makes a decided improvement.

Hives are a terrible torment to the little folks, and to some older ones.
Doane's Ointment never fails. Instant relief and permanent cure. At any chemist's, 10 cents.

New attractions at the Orpheum tonight.

DEADLY HACKS

Another Maimed Victim
Yesterday.

Driver of Number Thirty-One Ordered off the Stand by the Inspector.

An old man was knocked down and partly run over by hack No. 31 yesterday afternoon while he was crossing Union street to the makai side of Hotel. The hack, so witnesses say, came into Union street considerably faster than the legal rate of speed allowed and, before the victim was conscious of his danger, the reckless driver had run him to earth. A survey of results disclosed a lacerated ankle and a bruised shoulder, the man's coat being ripped, and he was covered with dust and mud.

Hack Inspector Ferreira was on the scene when the accident occurred and forcibly denounced the hackman for his carelessness, and ordered the hack and driver away from the hackstand at that place. The injured man was told to go to a physician and have his wounds dressed at the expense of the reckless driver. That more such accidents have not occurred in the business section of Honolulu is due mainly to the fact that pedestrians traversing street crossings have been extremely alert. This cannot be said of hack-drivers in general.

Yesterday afternoon a reporter counted twelve out of sixteen hacks crossing the intersection of King and Fort streets without any perceptible attempt to lessen their speed, which, to say the least, amounted to more than the maximum allowed by law.
Four out of eight of the same class of vehicles swerved around various corners of the above intersections and, in almost every case, the lives of pedestrians were endangered. In one instance a lady and two children were almost run down, but by forcing her two charges back to the sidewalk the former barely escaped being impaled upon a sharp-pointed shaft.

In Chicago, New York, St. Louis, and, in fact, in almost any city of metropolitan aspect, a policeman stands in the center of street intersections in the busy portions, and with his badge driver of any vehicle who endeavors to pass over the crossings at a speed greater than a walk. The policeman's sprawled arm confronting a driver signifies the law, and it is hardly necessary to state that nearly every driver in such cities respects the meaning of the gesture.

With accidents happening so frequently of late in this city in which hacks have figured so prominently the time seems ripe for Honolulu to regulate fast driving and enforce the law of the road with a rigid hand.

The Hawaiian band gave an enjoyable moonlight concert last night in the Executive building grounds.
